

Robot is a companion for China's lonely children

It speaks two languages, gives math lessons, tells jokes and interacts with children through the tablet screen in its chest- China's latest robot "ipal" is the baby sitter every parent needs.

Recently 'ipal' was unveiled at the Consumer Electronics show Asia in Shanghai. The humanoid device stands as tall as five year old ,moves and dances on wheels. Parents also can remotely talk to and monitor the children through the ipal , which is linked to a smart phone app that allow them to see and hear every thing. Tingyu Huang, co-founder of AvatarMind Robot Technology says that this robot would ideally be a companion to lonely children.

Price is around 1400 USD.
